Vacant and Well Located Property In Good Demand

Real estate transfers and home building is a major activity at Ocean Beach, Point Loma and Mission Beach at the present time, with many vacant lots being sold here to prospective home builders as fast as financing plans can be carried out after the lots change hands. That this section has no Mattoon bonds has always been in its favor and the only improvement bonds of consequence are the remaining payments to be made by some for street work.

Southern California, will, sooner or later, become recognized as the greatest part of America. Make no mistake about that. Economists have noted the heart of the nation moving westward and California is making great strides to become the greatest of all the states.

On most any street here you may see new homes being built or additions being made. At corner Muir street and Sunset Cliffs blvd., Bert Greer is building four single-bedroom apts. to be modern and with stucco finish. H. B. Greer, son of the builder was the draftsman, and is employed at Whiting Mead Co. The Greers now live at 4843 Niagara avenue and have been here for nearly twenty years.

Just north of Voltaire, at 2111 Froude street, Henry Walters has the framework up for a frame-stucco residence and garage to cost $2650.

At 4445 Narragansett avenue, next to the new Bert W. Wenrich home, Ray Patrick has bought the lot and let a contract for a $3800 frame-stucco residence and garage to be completed just as soon as possible.

At Mission Beach Laura A. Vaughan, 715 Jersey court, is building a $2500 frame cottage and garage. And at 3753 Mission Blvd., Louis N. Shapiro is erecting a frame-stucco store building to cost in the neighborhood of $3,000.

Loma Portal section is building a new residence most every week. This week's addition to the new ones being a frame-stucco residence and garage to cost $4700. The property of Mrs. Charles P. Brenner.

Houses already built are coming in for good sale too, with R. L. Gilbert recently buying the Erickson place at 4636 Cape May avenue. Mr. Gilbert is postman of route 145, Ocean Beach, and transferred here from similar work at Oakland, California, last July 1st.

Mrs. Lena Hickok last week bought a lot on Brighton avenue adjoining Rev. Dunn's home on the west and expects soon to build a California redwood cottage according to present plans.

Dr. Bartell recently bought the Ben Mar court on Brighton ave., near the beach, also the court of J. M. Duggan at 4865 Voltaire street. Mr. Duggan is reported to have bought a home on 68th street near La Mesa.

The Ocean Beach Lutheran Mission recently bought a lot 50x140 on southwest corner of Cape May and Sunset Cliffs blvd., where they hope to build a church when building funds are available. Their choice of lots is well taken for it keeps our church buildings to date all with a three block area.

To Start Trans-Pacific Air Mail Route Today

Perhaps the greatest, most daring as well as economic adventure of modern days, will take place today, Friday, the 22nd. when airmail service opens thru to the Philippines, between San Francisco and Manila. For weeks and months this unequalled feat has been under consideration, and already plenty of aviators are wanting the job. When the Trans-Pacific Airmail Service Corporation, better known as the Pan American. came thru with the proper guarantee. the government hastened to close the contract.

It is the longest airmail route in the world, and promises to be a financial success. Luxury, as well as convenience is combined when considering that it will cost 75 cents postage with a three cents extra, to send a letter.

Eventually, the air service is to be extended to China and other Asiatic points. but for the present, mail will be carried from Manila to those points by ship. The probable postage rate from the United States to China via the Pan American air route will be $1 per half ounce.

Pan American was the only bidder, submitting a bid for the maximum amount of $2 a mile for an 800-pound load and $1 a thousand miles for each pound of excess load. It is estimated that on this basis they will receive from the Government approximately $16,000 for every trip it makes.

The route will be via Honolulu, Midway Island and Guam. Possible routes are under consideration to New Zealand and Australia, and within a year, perhaps, all Asiatic as well as eastern European points will be under direct airmail service with the United States. What future possibilities are seen thru the benefits from aviation!

SCHOOL SAFETY CAMPAIGN FAVORING BONDS DEC. 10

Headquarters from which to 'make our schools safe' campaign will be directed were opened this week at 145 Broadway in the Spreckels theatre building. In charge of the campaign is Thomas O. Scripps, general chairman of a committee composed of scores of men and women active in civic, school and business affairs. Geo. W. Fisher is chairman of the executive committee and Harry L. Foster is campaign manager.

The city board of education, complying with the terms of a new state law which required that school buildings be made safe has called a special election for Tuesday, Dec. 10 at which time the voters of the school district will pass on the program. The state division of architecture, after a careful survey of the buildings, has declared that an earthquake shock in this vicinity would do tremendous damage with a great probable loss of life in every city school.

Full information on the subject is available at headquarters where citizens are invited to call or to telephone Franklin 6619.

KIWANIANS ENJOY TURKEY DINNER SERVED BY WOMAN'S CLUB

Thirty Kiwanians, wives and guests had a very pleasant entertainment following a delicious turkey dinner served by the Woman's club Tuesday evening.

Joe Restine was the capable master of ceremonies and as chief feature of his program had Charles M. Urbach, traffic representative for United Airlines, and James M. Keefe, publicity agent. These men spoke briefly of the work of their company and then showed interesting picture reels of a sixteen hour flight from the west coast to New York City, also views of the Boeing factory at Seattle and the servicing plant at Cheyenne, Wyo., where 500 men are employed regularly checking and repairing ships of the line. Mr. Urbach stated that there are 45 instruments on the modern plane for guidance of the pilot and to lend to safe transportation. United Air Lines has nearly ten years in the air, 80' million miles of flying, 1,400 transport and technical experts. It covers the west coast from San Diego to Vancouver and transcontinental lines east touching the principal cities en route to New York.

Three Roseville boys, Alfred Romero, playing piano and accordian; David Pittsford, accordian, and Duane Pittsford in tap dancing, were accorded well deserved applause for their part in the program. Dad Bingham in the "Cremation of San McGee" and an encore gave his audience quite a thrill for the original way in which he presents his readings.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Herz were guests of Milton Lancaster and Mr. and Mrs. Lockwod were guests of Dr. Felt. Dr. Bliss and Norman Maw were guests of the club.

Community Service On Thanksgiving

The annual community Thanksgiving services will be held in the Baptist church Thanksgiving Day in the morning from 10 to 11 o'clock. The sermon will be delivered by Rev. John Osborn, Episcopal church. Scripture and prayer, Rev. James H. Hughes, Methodist church. Announcements by Rev. W. S. Dunn, Baptist church. Music will be rendered by the combined church choirs.

RECLAIMING HILLS NEAR LA JOLLA

They are reclaiming the "Bad Lands" near the Scripps Institution of Oceanography at La Jolla, in order to prevent their destruction by erosion. The work, a federal WPA project, calls for the installation of cncrete pipe lines, ditch excavation and the building of bulkheads and dam barriers.

CARD OF THANKS

Mrs. R. T. Marshall, Mrs. J. T. Smith and Mr. Walter Marshall wish to thank kind friends for condolences and sympathy shown during their recent bereavement.

Taxpayer Protests Removal Fire Restrictions Central Business Area.

Ocean Beach, California
November 21, 1935

Dear Editor:

A question that ought to concern every taxpayer in Ocean Beach is whether or not to remove the ruling on the City books in regard to the restricted Fire Zone Area. Concerning this matter, I, as a taxpayer, believe that the time is not quite ripe to have so much of the suburb restricted. However, I believe that at least the two blocks on Newport avenue from the ocean to Cable street ought to remain in this restricted area. Why? For the simple reason that it is not fair to those people who have been forced to abide within these rules and regulations during the last eight years to now have someone come and build a fire trap next door.

Why, we ask, did the Chamber of Commerce some eight or ten years ago favor this restriction? The saying at that time was that Ocean Beach resembled that of an Arizona Mining Camp more than anything else — where a man was permitted to erect any kind of a shack he wanted to anywhere from fifty dollars and up. Therefore the Chamber of Commerce condemned twenty-six shacks under this new restriction and in place of which some new substantial fireproof buildings have been erected.

To help Ocean Beach formulate itself into a respectible suburb, where people like to come and dwell and a place where people like to shop and buy, thus also helping to increase the population of Ocean Beach. Some definite restrictions ought to remain so that we get a business section that will attract and not detract. That is what every taxpayer should concern himself about and strive to develop, and it is only thru the medium of cooperation that this can be done. If a petition were circulated to only include these two blocks under thse fire restrictions, I would sign it. I therefore plead with the taxpayers of Ocean Beach earnestly to consider this matter which I think will mean much for the future of Ocean Beach.

Yours very truly,
A TAXPAYER.

Says Money Promised For Fishing Pier at Sunset Cliffs

Plans are nearing completion in the city engineer's office for a fishing pier to be erected near Ocean Beach at a new location, it was stated today at the city manager's office. To lessen the cost and to be assured quieter waters for fishing, the engineer's crew, after making several surveys, recommended a site opposite the John P. Mills home, Sunset Cliffs. Reports were made to the manager that deep water would be encountered at a distance 600 feet less than at the former location, foot of Del Monte st., thereby greatly reducing the cost of the pier. Is also was stated that at Sunset Cliffs there would be ample room for car parking, while on Del Monte st., there would be little room for cars. The plans, when completed, will be forwarded to the state WPA for approval and the money has been promised, it is claimed.—Tribune.

POINTERS JOURNEY TO OCEANSIDE FOR TODAY'S GAME

The fighting gridders from Point Loma High school play their last league game at Oceanside High, today at 3 o'clock. Point Loma and Oceanside are tied for third place, but the winner of their tussle will advance to second place, thru a queer trick of the standings. The Lomans are able to win this game, and will be slight favorites to do so.

RETURN OF AUTO RAFFLE TICKETS

A plan was devised a few weeks back wherein an auto was to go to a lucky person in an effort to raise funds for the deficit of the Barbecue Committee. As the solicitation has not come up to expectations, those in charge have decided to refund to ticket holders the amounts they donated.

Each solicitor will refund to his patrons the amount they paid him for tickets.

Meat From Tijuana Said To Be Unsanitary

For the benefit of the few people who have gone, or expect to go, from this section to buy fresh meat at Tijuana we publish the following item from the National City News whose representative, after first-hand inspection, believes it poor economy to buy uninspected meat.

"Tuesday morning, in company with an inspector from the county health department, the writer went to Tijuana and visited the slaughter house from which butcher shops of that city get their meat and which Americans go across and buy by the pound, most people bringing across 10 pounds at a time.

"This practice has been frowned upon by those who believe that there should be the strictest inspection of meat in all slaughter houses and butcher shops. The only safeguard the buying public has in the stamp put on by health department officials. The fact that there has so far been epidemic from such meat is no guarantee that there will not be one. It might go on for years and no disastrous results occur, and again it might be any time. Leaving aside the fact that it costs as much by the time mileage and gas is taken into consideration, as to buy at home at a slight increase in price, it looks queer and smacks slightly of disloyalty to see government men, retired navy men and those employed by the state coming over the border with their allotment of meat, allowed to be brought in free. Several people make the trip at one time and bring back a month's supply, while home merchants who pay the taxes that give them their living are put to it to pay such taxation.

"We arrived at the slaughter house about 10 o'clock and found that killing had just been done. In the open room were two carcasses on the floor while two were hung on rods not yet disembowled. While the inspector was making the rounds the writer watched them do this. On the floor were the entrails, hearts, livers and refuse of the animals killed before. To this was added the ones we saw them open. There was no doctor there to identify the livers and hearts with the animals that had been butchered. If one was found diseased later there would be no telling from which animal it came.

"As they moved the stuff about, there was disclosed a black unborn calf that had been removed from the carcass of one of the cows. The meat of such a cow would certainly be unfit to eat, not to think of the niceties of the thing. Again, why would anyone butcher a cow, ready to drop a calf, if that cow was well and in good condition?

"The animals were hung, with hides on, in another room, not a cooling room, to be later taken, we were informed, to a refrigeration plant. How long they are left with the hides on there was no way of knowing. In modern plants the hide is removed as soon as inspection is made. Young boys were playing around the floor dragging this stuff about. If they were working they were too young to pass a physical examination, and if they were only playing it did not speak well for conditions.

"It would be well if all those wishing to buy fresh meat outside the borders of the United Statts would first take the trouble to know what they were doing. The few cents saved, if there is any saving, would seem a little thing beside what it might mean when fed to children. When you go into a market on this side of the international line, your butcher can show you a government stamp and a trip to the packing houses is a pleasure when you see how they handle your food."

Firemen To Hold 25th Annual Ball

Members of the San Diego Firemen's Relief association will stage their 25th annual ball at the Mission Beach ballroom on Thanksgiving eve, November 27th. A fine program has been planned and music will be furnished by Eddie Wheeler's orchestra.

A special feature of the evening's program will be the awarding of over $400 in door prizes. Each purchaser of a ticket to the ball will be eligible to win one of these fine prizes, and to accommodate those who cannot be present at the dance, the committee in charge has ruled that it will not be necessary for the winning ticket holder to be present, but that the award may be claimed at a later time. The first prize will be a Wedgewood gas range. Other prizes are a 9-piece dining room set, a complete silver set, an airplane luggage set and a cedar chest.

Annually the members of the relief association conduct a ball to aid their relief fund which is used to care for firemen who are disabled or taken sick. The members of the fire department contribute monthly to this fund, but the heavy demands upon the relief association make it necessary for the directors of the association to seek additional revenue to carry on this work.

Tickets may be purchased from any fireman or at any fire station.

TOWNSEND CLUB PROGRAM HEARD BY FULL HOUSE

The Ocean Beach Townsend club drew a crowd which filled the Woman's clubhouse to overflowing, Monday evening, to hear Mrs. Sydney Scott relate her experiences of the Chicago convention. Mrs. Scott is a very interesing speaker and gave a very enthusiatic report of the growth of the Townsend Plan. District manager R. Z. Adams and Ex-Senator Wm. E. Harper also gave short addresses.

Refreshments were served and a very enjoyable time was had by all.

CHURCH SURVEY NEXT WEEK

A religious survey will be made in Ocean Beach next week. This survey is in connection with the Kernahan Survey which is being made by the Protestant churches in a city wide campaign. The headquarters for Ocean Beach will be the Methodist church. The Ocean Beach Baptist church and the Ocean Beach Methodist church will cooperate in making the canvas.

Armistice Day Celebrated Throughout Nation

ARMISTICE day was celebrated in the United States more generally and elaborately than it had been since the first of those occasions seventeen years ago. Chief of all the ceremonies, naturally, was that at Arlington National cemetery in Washington, where many thousands gathered to hear an address by President Roosevelt. Standing before the tomb of the Unknown Soldier, the Chief Executive paid a brief but eloquent tribute to the gallantry of America's fighting men in the World war, especially those who gave their lives in that conflict. Then, as the bugles sounded taps at 11 o'clock, he bared his head and stood silent for a minute, as did millions of his fellow citizens all over the land. The President next placed a wreath on the Unknown Soldier's tomb. For six hours, afterward, uniformed organizations marched up the hill in Arlington and laid their wreaths at the tomb.

President Roosevelt

The celebration in the national capital was culminated by a ball arranged by the Veterans of Foreign Wars. Congressional Medal of Honor men headed the list of guests, others being cabinet officers, diplomats and high officials of the army, navy and marine corps. Mrs. Woodrow Wilson was one of the guests.

Roosevelt Birthday Balls Will Be Repeated

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT will be fifty-four years old on January 30 next, and once more the day will be marked in many cities and towns by balls, the receipts from which will be devoted to the war on infant paralysis. Mr. Roosevelt announced his approval of the plan, which is fathered by Henry L. Doherty.

Doherty wrote to the President urging him to lend his name to a third series of birthday balls. He pointed out that the proceeds of the first ball enabled the Warm Springs Foundation in Georgia to carry on its program and the second financed and organized a major attack on the disease by research and provided funds for communities in which the balls were held.

Corn Husking Champion Sets World Record

NOT of vast importance, but interesting enough to command the presence of Secretary of Agriculture Wallace and 100,000 other persons, was the twelfth annual national corn husking contest held on a farm at the village of Newtown, Ind.

The winner was Elmer Carlsen, twenty-six years old, of Audubon county, who was competing against 17 opponents, the winners and runners-up of nine midwestern states' contests. Carlsen shucked 41.52 bushels of the golden corn in 80 minutes, which means that he ripped the ears from the stalks, tore the flimsy husks from them and pitched a gross weight of 2,995 pounds into his wagon. He lost 88.43 pounds deducted for gleanings left in the field and husks left on the corn.

Carlsen set a new world's record, the old one being 36.9 bushels, which mark was beaten also by four others of the contestants. The first prize was a check for $100 given by the Prairie Farmer. Mr. Wallace said the contest was "the best I've ever seen."

Italian King Celebrates His 66th Birthday

VICTOR EMMANUEL, king of Italy, celebrated his sixty-sixth birthday rather quietly because of the war in which his people are engaged in Africa. He reviewed a parade of armed forces, and with him was the real ruler of the country, Benito Mussolini. Il Duce then appeared on the balcony of his Venezia palace to address a great throng of cheering citizens in the plaza. He spoke just these two sentences:

King Victor Emmanuel

"The forces you have seen this morning with all their weapons, and especially in their spirit, are ready to defend Italy's interests in Europe, Africa or anywhere.

"In one month we have regulated two old accounts (apparently the Italian defeats at Aduwa and Makale, Ethiopia, in 1896) and the remainder will be settled later."

Mussolini that same evening sent to the nations participating in the sanctions against Italy a formal protest against their action, and warned them that Italy would be forced into reprisals with serious consequences to the economic world.

Meanwhile the Italian armies in Ethiopia were advancing steadily toward the interior from both the north and south. The strategic towns of Makale and Gorrahei were occupied practically without resistance. Harrar and Jijiga in the south and Dessye in the north were apparently the next major objectives. The Ethiopians, it was believed, would try to concentrate behind the invading columns to cut their communications.

Haile Selassie lost one of his ablest commanders in the death of General Afework, who was struck by an Italian bomb splinter during a bombardment of Gorrahei. He was educated in Europe and was skilled in military science.

Plot to Kill Ambassador Caffery Is Foiled

ONCE more Jefferson Caffery, American ambassador to Cuba, has been saved from assassination, the intelligence operatives of the Cuban army having discovered and thwarted the plot on the eve of its execution. Dispatches from Havana said the army officials believed the plot was nipped by the arrest of Cesar Villar, leader of the Confederation of Labor; that the assassination was to have taken place when Mr. Caffery left the embassy for home on November 1, and that six automobiles were ready to carry the assassins to a place of refuge. They believed the plot was inspired by radicals who seek to provoke American intervention in Cuba and hope this would bring on a revolution. It was said 29 men had been sworn to kill Mr. Caffery and certain others.

New Crisis in China Created by Japan

JAPAN'S apparent determination to dominate northern China has created another crisis in that oriental country, and Shanghai is involved for the Japanese have taken advantage of the slaying of a Japanese sailor there and landed a naval unit 2,000 strong which occupied the Hongkew section of the city.

As the Japanese force began patroling with fixed bayonets and full war equipment, international settlement authorities mobilized a White Russian regiment of Cossacks under Col. F. R. W. Graham, British army officer detailed as commander of the local volunteer units. The Cossacks, paid by the international settlement, constitute a small standing army for the foreign quarter.

The Chinese were terrified and thousands of them fled from the native quarter to the international settlement, believing the Japanese intended military action in retribution for the murder of the sailor. This the Japanese government denied, but it declared the situation was "serious."

In Tokyo officials of the navy and foreign office met to discuss their policy, and it was reported that development plans for northern China were decided upon. Meanwhile Japanese military authorities at Tientsin invited to their headquarters Gen. Hsiao Chen-ying, chairman of the Chahar provincial government; Gen. Sung Che-yuan, head of the Peiping-Tientsin defense corps; Mayor Chin Teh-ching of Peiping, and Mayor Chen Ko of Tientsin to explain the army's new policy.

According to information from Japanese sources these Chinese leaders "have come to a strong determination that North China cannot exist unless it co-operates with Japan and Manchukuo by cutting away from Nanking."

Army Balloonists Soar to Record Height

CAPTS. ALBERT W. STEVENS and Orvil A. Anderson of the army made their long delayed balloon voyage into the stratosphere, and if their barometric computations are sustained they reached the record altitude of 74,000 feet. Their balloon rose from near Rapid City, S. D., and landed safely near White Lake, S. D., eight hours and thirteen minutes later.

Steel Helmets Dissolved by Hitler's Order

BY ORDER of Reichsfuehrer Hitler, the Steel Helmet association of war veterans has been dissolved. This was highly satisfactory to the Hitlerites, who considered the association a rallying point for the conservatives. In a letter to Franz Seldte, founder and leader of the Steel Helmets, Hitler praised the veterans for "keeping alive traditions of the old army and striving for restoration of a strong reich," but said he deemed this goal achieved and the association no longer needed. Members will be admitted to the Nazi party if found acceptable.

Old conservatives are bitter over the abolition of the Steel Helmet organization. It is reported that the junkers (landed aristocracy), who at first co-operated with Hitler, are withdrawing to their estates. Farmers allege the junkers are not doing their utmost to help increase agricultural production.

Both Parties Find Cheer in State Elections

REPUBLICANS shouted loudly that the victory of their party in the New York state election was a terrific blow to the New Deal and a repudiation of President Roosevelt. The Democrats declared it was no such thing. James A. Farley, who is both national and state chairman of the Democrats, gave them their cue when he declared recapture of control of the legislature by the G. O. P. was "normal" and that the Democratic vote for assembly candidates taken as a whole exceeded the Republican vote by more than half a million, which was something of an exaggeration.

J. A. Farley

The Republicans gained nine additional seats in the assembly, giving them 82 to 68 held by the Democrats. Only two senate seats were involved in the contest, both to fill vacancies. One of them went to a Republican and the other to a Democrat, leaving the setup of the upper legislative body unchanged.

In 45 cities of the state, the Republicans elected 33 mayors, including Roland B. Marvin of Syracuse, possible nominee for governor next year. The President saw Hyde Park go Republican and Farley failed to hold his own district in Rockland county.

The Democratic organization in New York came through strongly and menaces the prospect of a re-election for Mayor LaGuardia, observers hold. The Fusion forces, which turned Tammany out two years ago, crumbled.

In Philadelphia S. Davis Wilson, Republican, was elected mayor but the vote was close enough for the Democrats to call it a virtual victory for the New Deal. Cleveland, Columbus and 23 out of 42 other cities and towns in Ohio chose Republican mayors, and so did a number of municipalities in Massachusetts. Connecticut Socialists re-elected Jasper McLevy mayor, and Democratic mayors were returned in Hartford and New Haven. Republicans gained control of the New Jersey legislature, but Hudson county, including Jersey City, went Democratic by a record vote.

Results in the spectacular election in Kentucky gave the New Dealers a real reason for rejoicing, for A. B. Chandler, known as "Happy," the Democratic candidate for governor who had the support of the national administration, handily defeated Judge King Swope, the Republican nominee. This despite the fact that Democratic Governor Lafoon had declared himself against Chandler and threw his support to Swope. The referendum on repeal of the state prohibition amendment gave the repealists a good majority.

In Virginia and Mississippi all the Democratic nominees were elected, which was to be expected.

George Accepts Offer of Greek Throne

THREE Greeks went to London to invite George II to return to the throne, in accordance with the plebescite of the Greek people. Deeply moved, he replied:

"I shall never forget the past. I shall return almost immediately to my beloved people. May we have divine guidance to bring happiness, peace, and prosperity to our Greece!"

Following the ceremony, the forty-five year-old monarch, with the Princes Paul and Peter and the Princesses Catherine and Olga, the latter a sister of the duchess of Kent, attended a special service of thanksgiving at the Greek orthodox church. Then the Greek king lunched with King George and Queen Mary of England at Buckingham palace.

Norris Wishes to Retire From the Senate

GEORGE W. NORRIS, veteran Republican independent senator from Nebraska, has announced that he desires to retire from the senate. He is seventy-four years old, and has served 32 years, including ten in the lower house, and said: "I am no candidate. I am getting old. Younger men can and should carry on the work which I have tried to do during my years as senator."

Senator Norris

His friends in Washington and Nebraska could not see any available fit man to succeed Norris, and expressed the belief that he could be persuaded to run again, either as a Republican, or as an independent if both parties in Nebraska nominate men whom he regards as stand-patters.

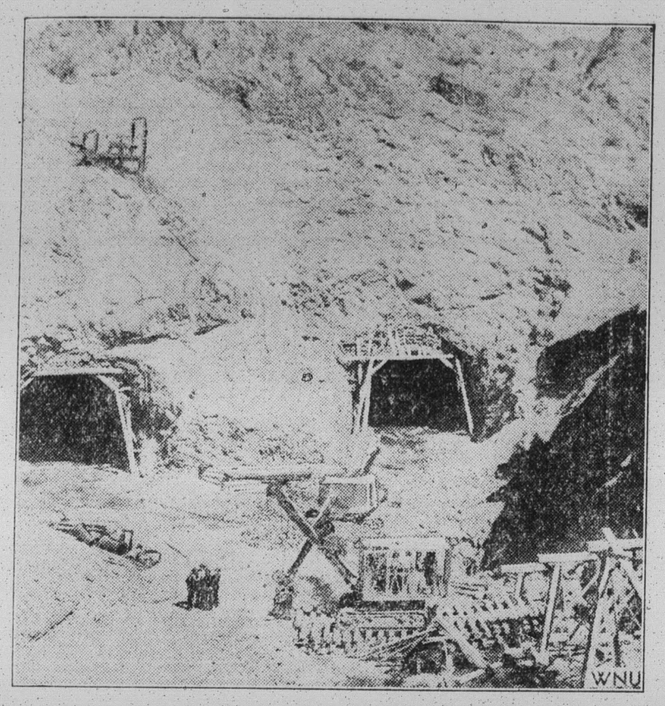
Senator Borah of Idaho, informed of Norris' announcement, said: "If I could do it, I would command him, for his country's sake, to change his mind."

Roosevelt Will Visit Chicago Dec. 9

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT has accepted an invitation from Edward A. O'Neal, president of the American Farm Bureau federation, to appear before that organization in Chicago on December 9 and deliver an address. Mr. Roosevelt will arrive in Chicago at nine o'clock that morning, make his speech, and start back to Washington three hours later.

The President's promised trip to Indiana to take part in the dedication of a memorial to George Rogers Clark at Vincennes has been postponed until June of next year, when he will also visit the Texas centennial exposition in Dallas.

WILL DIVERT COLORADO RIVER



Pictured above are entrances to the two Parker Dam diversion tunnels. The tunnels, which measure 29 feet in diameter and are 1600 feet long, will divert the Colorado River while the Parker Dam is being constructed. This dam, 155 miles downstream from Boulder Dam, will form a 50-mile-long reservoir.

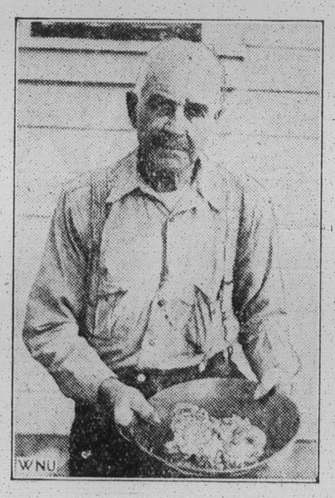
FIGHTS FOR HAPPY DAYS AGAIN

"My heart goes out to these young sufferers," declared President Roosevelt recently as he expressed his appreciation of the 200 nurses who contracted infantile paralysis while fighting the Los Angeles epidemic last year. The President's letter was sent to Dr. George Parrish, city health officer, and referred to 38 nurses who sent him birthday greetings this year. Of the 200 stricken, 100 are still convalescing. Photo shows Ruth Schweer, one of the victims, who has been ill since July 4, 1934.

Confesses Hoax

Photo shows Clois Francis Key, known on the gridiron as Ted Key and ball-packing star of the powerful U. C. L. A. eleven, who has admitted taking the name of Ted so he could use another boy's credits to gain entrance to the Bruin school. Following his confession, he was ousted from the university. Key made the winning touchdown against Stanford this year.

$5,000 Nugget



Here is Jefferson Casserly, prospector and writer, and an 11-pound gold nugget he found near Nevada City the other day. The nugget, larger than a pint milk bottle, is estimated to contain two pounds of quartz, nine pounds of pure gold, and to be worth about $5,000.

Don't Guess But Know

Don't Entrust Your Own or Your Family's Well-Being to Unknown Preparations

THE person to ask whether the preparation you or your family are taking for the relief of headaches is SAFE to use regularly is your family doctor. Ask him particularly about Genuine BAYER ASPIRIN.

He will tell you that before the discovery of Bayer Aspirin most "pain" remedies were advised against by physicians as bad for the stomach and, often, for the heart. Which is food for thought if you seek quick, safe relief.

Scientists rate Bayer Aspirin among the fastest methods yet discovered for the relief of headaches and the pains of rheumatism, neuritis and neuralgia. And the experience of millions of users has proved it safe for the average person to use regularly. In your own interest remember this.

You can get Genuine Bayer Aspirin at any drug store — simply by asking for it by its full name, BAYER ASPIRIN. Make it a point to do this — and see that you get what you want.

Fake Fingerprints May Divert Police Suspicion

Fingerprints of different people, as we know, are never the same. But it is possible for a crook to imitate a genuine fingerprint so that the suspicion of the police can be diverted, says Pearson's Weekly.

How this can be done has been shown by Dr. Harold Cummins of the Tulane University of Medicine, Chicago. Taking an original genuine fingerprint, he had it engraved, and made a three dimensional negative in wax. Then he took a cast in gelatin on a dummy finger. Twelve of the 32 prints he made with the dummy finger were declared by fingerprint experts to be genuine.

Though this proportion is not very great, the United States authorities believe it is sufficient to allow criminals many opportunities to put the police on false trails.

SYNOPSIS

The youthful and comely "Widder" Marcia Howe has as her guest her late husband's niece, Sylvia Hayden. A stranger, exhausted, finds his way to Marcia's home. Secretly, he asks her to hide a package containing jewelry. She does so. Elisha Winslow, town sheriff, brings news of a jewel robbery nearby. The stranger gives his name as Stanley Heath. Sylvia discovers the jewels, and naturally believes Heath is a robber, but, for Marcia's sake, decides to say nothing. Marcia feels she has altogether too deep an interest in her guest, but is powerless to overcome it. Heath wires "Mrs. S. C. Heath," New York, saying he is safe. He also orders a man named Currier to come at once. Sylvia, in her room, bedecks herself with the jewels. At Marcia's approach she hides them there. Heath asks Marcia to bring them to him. They are gone! He makes light of the loss. Sylvia restores the jewels to their original hiding place. Elisha Winslow discovers them and has no doubt they are the stolen gems, and Heath is a thief. Leaving the jewels, he makes plans for arresting Heath. Currier arrives. Marcia overhears Heath describe how he acquired the gems, and is forced to believe him guilty of theft. At Heath's suggestion, Currier investigates the hiding place—and finds the gems! He returns to New York with them, but his references to "Mrs. Heath" have convinced Marcia her tender dream has been a foolish one. Elisha and Eleazer come to arrest Heath. Marcia is indignant, and unwittingly reveals to Sylvia the secret of her love. The jewels, of course, are not to be found.

"Oh, for heaven's sake don't do that," Elisha pleaded. "Artie Nickerson would be ragin' mad did he find I'd told you. If you must know what the message was, I can repeat it near 'nough, I reckon. It ran somethin' like this:

"'Safe on Cape with my lady. Shall return with her later.'"

"And that was all?" inquired Marcia calmly.

"All! Ain't that enough?" Elisha demanded.

As she vouchsafed no reply he presently continued:

"I don't want you should think I told you this, Marcia, with any unfriendly motive. It's only that those of us who've seen you marry one worthless villain don't want you should marry another. Jason was a low down cuss. You know that well's I."

"I'm aware 'tain't pleasant to hear me say so out loud, but it's God's truth."

"Marcia!" Sylvia burst out.

"Hush, dear. We'll talk of this later. Elisha, I think I must ask you and Eleazer to go now."

"You ain't goin' to tell me where the jewels are?"

"I don't know where they are."

"Nor nothin' 'bout—'bout the telegram."

"Nothing except to thank you for your kind intentions and say you quoted it quite correctly. I sent it for Mr. Heath myself. 'My Lady,' as you have apparently forgotten, is the name of Mr. Heath's boat."

"My land! So 'tis," faltered Elisha. "I'm almighty sorry, Marcia—I ask your pardon."

The door banged behind the discomfited officials.

CHAPTER IX

The torrent of words Sylvia had until now held in check broke from her:

"Was it true, Marcia—what they said about Uncle Jason I mean? Was it true?"

"I'm afraid so, dear."

"But you never told me; and you never told Mother, either. Of course I see why. You didn't want her to know because it would have broken her heart. I hate him! I hate him for making you unhappy and spoiling your life!"

"Hush child. Jason has not spoiled my life," contradicted Marcia with a grave, sad smile.

"But he has scarred it—dashed to pieces all the dreams you started out with—those beautiful dreams a girl has when she is young. I know you had such fancies once, for you are the sort who would. And Jason came and trampled on them—"

"He made me see life as it was. Perhaps it was better I should."

"Was Jason as bad as they said, Marcia? Ah, you don't have to answer. There is no need for you to try to reconcile your desire to spare me—spare him—with the truth. He was as bad—probably much worse. Dear, dear Marcia." Impulsively Sylvia bent her lips to the hands so tightly clasped in hers. "I cannot imagine," she rushed on, 'why, when one of my family had made you as wretched as he did, you should have wanted another in the house. Had I suffered so I should never have wished to lay eyes on any more Howes as long as I lived."

"I have tried not only to forgive but to forget. I have closed the door on the past and begun a new life."

"And now into it has come this Stanley Heath," the girl said.

For the fraction of a second Marcia did not reply; then almost inaudibly she murmured:

"Yes."

Sylvia slipped one of her strong young arms about the bowed shoulders.

"It just seems as if I could not bear it," she burst out passionately.

"Slivia, look at me. Tell me the truth. Do you, too, love Stanley Heath? Was that the reason you fought against Elisha's finding the jewels? Tell me. I must know."

"No," she answered without hesitation. "At first he did fascinate me. I changed my mind, though, later on. Not because on acquaintance he became less charming. It wasn't that. If anything, he became more so. I just—changed my mind. As for the jewels, I could not bear to let that little runt of a sheriff win out. You see, I thought the gems were there under the brick and that when you urged him to search, you did not know it.

"I had known all along they were in the house, for I stumbled upon them by accident one day when I was here alone; but I had no idea you had. I truly believed Mr. Heath had hidden them beneath the hearth, and I was determined Elisha should not find them."

"You think Mr. Heath took the jewels?" asked Marcia, slowly.

"Certainly I do. Don't you?"

"No."

"But, Marcia,' can't you see how plain it all is? I know it is terrible for you, dear. It almost breaks my heart. It is an awful thing to believe of anybody—harder still of a person one loves. Nevertheless, we must face the facts. People do not carry such things about with them—especially men. He came by them in no honest way, you may be sure of that. He is guilty, Marcia—guilty."

"I do not believe it," was the stubborn protest.

"I realize, dear, it is hard for you to own it," soothed Sylvia. "We hate to admit the faults of those we—we—care for. Still, nothing is to be gained by remaining blind to them. Perhaps Mr. Heath was horribly tempted to commit this sin. We do not know. We are not his judges. The thing for us to do is to help him out of the mess he is in. Aid him to escape."

"Believing him guilty—you would do that?"

"Surely I would."

"You mean you would help him to evade the law? The punishment such wrongdoing merits?"

"Yes. To give him a sporting chance, the start of those who are after him. You love Stanley Heath. Don't you want to see him go free?"

"Not if he is guilty."

"Well, nobody is going to round up Mr. Heath if I can prevent it," asserted Sylvia, throwing back her head. "If you won't help him get away, I will. He must go in the boat—now—today."

"The boat has gone. Mr. Currier arrived this morning after you had gone and took the boat back to New York with him."

"And the jewels?"

"Yes, the jewels, too.."

"Humph! So that's where they are!"

"Yes."

"Pretty cute of him to make so neat a get-away! What sort of man was he? A gentleman, like Mr. Heath?"

The older woman colored.

"Well, no. At least he—he—. Oh, he was polite and had a nice manner—a quiet voice—"

"But he was different from Mr. Heath—an inferior—one who took orders," interrupted Sylvia. "In other words, he is the hands and Mr. Heath the brains of the team."

"How can you, Sylvia?"

"Because I must, Marcia—because we must both look this affair in the face. Confess the circumstances are suspicious."

"They seem to be," she owned with reluctance.

"Have you considered them?" Sylvia inquired.

Marcia drew her hand across her forehead.

"I—I—yes. I have thought them over. I don't understand them at all. Nevertheless, I do not believe Stanley Heath is guilty," was the proud retort.

"You are making a great mistake, if you will pardon me for saying so," Sylvia responded gently. "You are deliberately closing your eyes and mind to facts that later are bound to cause you bitter unhappiness. Let alone the man's guilt. He has a wife. You seem to forget that. As Elisha Winslow remarked, you have already been miserable once. Why be so a second time? Help Stanley Heath to get out of Wilton and forget him."

"I cannot do either of those things. In the first place, I have given my word to hand Mr. Heath over to the authorities. As for forgetting him—why ask the impossible?"

Sylvia's patience gave way.

"Go your own way then," she snapped. "Go your own way and if by and by you regret it—as you surely will—do not blame me. Don't blame me, either if I do not agree with you. Stanley Heath shall never remain here and be betrayed to the law. Stick to your grim old puritanism if you must. I'll help him get away."

She started toward the stairway.

"Sylvia, come back here!" Marcia cried.

"I shall not come back."

Marcia rushed after her, but it was too late.

Sylvia was gone.

* * * * * * *

Stanley Heath was lying with expectant face turned toward the door when Sylvia entered.

"What's the rumpus?" he demanded. "I guess you know. There is no use mincing matters or beating about the bush. The jewels have gone and you must go, too."

The man looked dumfounded.

"Don't misunderstand me, please," Sylvia rushed on. "I'm not blaming you—nor judging you. I don't know why you took them. You may have been tempted beyond your strength That is none of my business."

"You believe I stole them?"

"Certainly I do."

"Suppose I didn't?"

"I expected you'd say that," was the calm retort. "Let it go that way if you prefer. I don't mind. What I want to do is to help you to get away."

"Even if I am guilty."

"Yes. I just can't bear to have that mean little sheriff who's after you catch you."

"What's that?"

"That wretched Elisha Winslow who came here this morning with Eleazer Crocker tagging at his heels. In some way they had found out about the jewels and where you had hidden them. They wanted to come upstairs and arrest you post haste; but Marcia wouldn't allow it."

"Marcia heard the story, too?"

"Of course."

"Poor Marcia!"

"You may well say poor Marcia," Sylvia echoed sarcastically. "You have made her most unhappy. Oh, Mr. Heath, Marcia has not had the sort of life that I told you she had. She has been wretched—miserable. Go away before you heap more suffering upon her. I'll help you get out of town. I am sure we can devise a plan."

"Wait just a moment. What does Marcia say? I think I'd better talk with her first."

"Don't! It will only be a waste of time. Marcia is hard, merciless. Her conscience drives her to extremes. Even should you get her opinion, you would not follow it. But I'll send her to you—if I must. But remember, I warned you."

"The Jewels Have Gone and You Must Go, Too."

"I shall not soon forget that, Sylvia, nor the splendid loyalty you've shown today. I shall always remember it. Whatever happens, please realize that I am grateful," Heath said earnestly. "Run along now, and fetch Marcia."

It was some moments before Marcia answered the summons and when at last she came, it was with downcast eyes and evident reluctance.

"Tell me, please, exactly what happened down stairs." Heath smiled.

She related the incident tersely; without comment.

Stanley Heath, scrutinizing her with keen, appraising eyes, could not but note the pallor of her cheeks, the unsteadiness of her lips, the nervous clasping and unclasping of her hands.

"And that is all?" he inquired when convinced she had no intention of speaking further.

"That is all."

"Thank you. Now what do you think it best for me to do? I should like your opinion."

"But how can I give a just opinion? I cannot judge," she burst out as if goaded beyond her patience. "I know none of the facts."

A radiance, swift as the passage of a meteor, flashed across Stanley Heath's face and was gone.

"Suppose you yourself had taken these jewels and were placed in this dilemma?" pressed he.

"The case would not be similar at all."

"Why not?"

"Because—because I should be guilty."

"You mean—you think—"

"I do not believe you took the jewels," was the quiet answer.

"Marcia! Marcia! Why don't you believe I took them? Have I ever told you I did not take them? Ever led you to suppose me innocent?"

"You have never told me anything about it."

The man restrained an impulse to imprison her hands in his.

"Suppose I did take them?" he went on in an even, coolly modulated voice. "Suppose the case stands exactly as this shrewd-eyed Wilton sheriff suspects it does? What am I to do?"

He saw the color drain from her face.

"I only know what I should do, were I in your place. I should go through with it—clear my soul of guilt."

"And afterward?"

"Start over again."

"That would be very difficult. The stigma of crime clings to a man. My life would be ruined were I to pursue such a course."

Golden Phantoms

FASCINATING TALES OF LOST MINES

©W.N.U. By Editha L. Watson

THE LOST CITY

IN 1879, near where the town of Aspen, Colo., now stands, a stranger staggered into a ranch house, ill, tired, and crazed from privation.

When he had recovered sufficiently to tell his story, he spoke about the ruins of an old city in Utah, near which were an old fort and a rich mine of gold and silver. The mine, he said, appeared to have been worked centuries before his discovery of the place. He had 20 pounds of ore to back up his story, which he had managed to keep throughout his journey over the broken country.

As soon as he had regained enough health to allow him to travel, the stranger set out again with his load of ore, saying that he intended taking it to Leadville to sell. He expected to devote the proceeds to furnishing a modest outfit, when he would return to his find and work it. But he disappeared from all knowledge when he left the ranch, and was never seen again.

A party was gathered at Meeker to go into the Ute reservation where this mine was supposed to be, and it started out on the trail of the golden phantom. The party was headed by an old prospector who knew something of the country, and this man, as they neared the place where the mine was said to be, decided to go on ahead to scout out the lay of the land. He was gone for some time, and when he returned he had with him two sacks of ore which were from 70 per cent to 80 per cent pure silver and also contained some gold. He came with bad news, however, for the Utes were not feeling hospitable, and the prospector would not lead the party any farther lest they should all be killed.

Later on, this same prospector met a cowboy who claimed to have considerable influence over the Utes. He was persuaded to join this man in a hunt for the lost city treasure, but first he made a map of the country and left it with friends, as he felt uncertain whether he would live to return.

Time went on, and no word came from the prospector or the cowboy. They seemed to have disappeared as completely as had the stranger who started for Leadville with his ore. At last the prospector's friends, who had been keeping his map, decided to go in search for him.

They followed the trail into a desolate country where no human seemed ever to have lived. At last they met an old Ute who appeared to be friendly, and told him that they were hunting for the two men. The Indian understood them, and led them on to the foot of a cliff. Here they found the body of the prospector, who had been shot and thrown off of the height, but no horse nor pack was to be seen. Several miles farther on the old Ute showed them the body of the cowboy, who had also been shot to death, and his outfit stolen.

The two men were buried where they fell. In 1904 the location of those graves was still known, but the site of the mine had never been found. Whether it was an old Spanish working of whether the Indians had taken out the ore was never known. In fact, outside of the knowledge that the place is somewhere near the head of the Grand Canyon, there are no further data to be found regarding this lost mine.

BEHIND THE WALL

IN 1906 two men named Murphy and Thomas came into a little town in Sonora, Mexico. They had some ore which they took to the local assayer, an American, for a report. It assayed $60,000 to the ton.

The newcomers said that they had been prospecting up in the mountains to the west, and one day their burros got away. It was while they were hunting the animals that they found a wall of masonry which aroused their curiosity. It seemed very old, and yet was well preserved. Its discoverers thought that there might be something valuable behind such a wall, and accordingly they broke through to investigate.

Crawling into the hole they had made, they found themselves in the mouth of a tunnel. There were peculiar jadeite statuettes and other evidence of ancient tribes in the long-hidden place, but what these men wanted was gold, and it was with a vast thrill of joy that they found, at the end of some 150 feet, a two foot vein of the yellow metal in the breast of the tunnel.

The assayer heard their story with great interest. Then he proposed that the partners let him in on their mine. It was Yaqui country, and three men would be stronger than two. Then, his greater knowledge of ores and minerals would also serve them well. He was able to convince Murphy and Thomas that they needed him as a third partner, and they agreed to take him back with them.

Two days later they started for the mine. On the way, the Yaquis ambushed the trio, and the two prospectors were killed. The assayer escaped but he had not found out where to search for the ancient well, and its location remains a secret down to this day.

Housewife's Idea Box

Always Hem Dish Cloths

Some housewives use unhemmed cloths as dish cloths. This is not advisable because the lint which comes off these cloths is likely to go down the sink drain and result in stoppage. The time and trouble to correct the stoppage will be far greater than the time and trouble it takes to hem the cloths.

OCEAN BEACH VERY MUCH IN NEED OF COMMUNITY HALL

Our section is very much in need of a community hall where 300 to 500 citizens might be entertained comfortably in convention or for whatever purpose they might meet.

Speaking frankly, the old building on the beach used by the Woman's Club and sub-let to other groups, is a wreck and should be torn down, then no other structure erected on that side of Abbott street to obstruct the view of the ocean and access to the beach, which in this spot is our most safe and desirable watering place.

The Masons and Eastern Stars need a larger hall, the Woman's Club needs larger and better quarters, the V. F. W and auxiliary, the American Legion and auxiliary, when they have entertaiment of any sort, never can comfortably accommodate those who patronize their affairs. The churches or others who give card parties find they must limit the number of tables to fifteen or twenty and then the building is cold and drafty with a ten to one chance, of those attending in the winter season, of catching cold.

Several times opportunities have been presented to have divisional meetings of Kiwanis, and county meetings of the California Newspapers Publishers association convene here but these chances have been passed up for those in charge knew conveniences were inadequate and would only result in dissapointment to those attending. We have felt in these cases it was better not to have these groups come here than to come and then leave after being improperly taken care of.

What we especially need is an auditorium of sufficient size to house the largest conventions who may come here, then possibly a banquet hall and other smaller rooms for the convenience of the smaller groups or committees.

Someone in Ocean Beach has the means to finance such a building and there are plenty vacant lots in our business section, where it should be built, at least not more than a block or two away from the post office and banking center of the community.

If we had been an unincorporated section or a small separate corporation this improvement could have been easily secured during the past year with mostly government funds, however, being a suburban part of the city of San Diego in which no councilman or high ranking city official lives, we do not get the attention ordinarily due the population and groups which we have.

The greatest asset to national welfare is the child or youth in the home. We are all aware that they must travel in our foot-steps some future days—when old age creeps on and infirmities, limitations and feeble joints disable the desire to go forth. Unless the child is given attention regarding character, education and right principles for living, that child may grow into a condition of distorted mind, desires and ideals. There is too much careless government to sit at ease and allow conditions to go on from bad to worse. Youth must be told that civilization is in peril, but can be saved. Youth can save it. But youth must definitely be taught, encouraged and inspired. "No man stands so straight as when he stoops to help a boy or girl!" A few years from now, most of this generation will be dependent upon the boys and girls of today for existence and comforts. If they waste their time, their health, their opportunity, the old ones will not be proud of their posterity.

Within a few brief years we may hope to see motion pictures evolved into television, which means that this remarkable advancement in science will be available for every home that desires it. A company is already being organized in this state for the development of such apparatus that will receive talking motion pictures in the parlor of the home. The progress of the present century is very near to what might be considered the completion of scientific discovery and invention. We are living in a wonderland of discovery. Electric lights came after 700,000 years of candle light; automobiles have supplanted muscle power and cheated old dobbin of the harness. Automatic machinery and devices of scientific benefit have relieved human slavery beyond the most sanguine expectations. For present-day progress the world is swiftly being made over by the ingenuity of man's mind.

Book week is being observed and the habit of reading more books is being encouraged in many elementary schools. Public instruction is using its influence by instituting a course of supplementary reading for students. Some schools have recommended four books a year of selected volumes, in addition to their regular school work. These pupils would derive untold benefits, for besides occupying their time it uses their minds and develops their mental capacity. Parents are more than pleased to have their children thus engaged for these are times when snares by the wayside take the attention and lessen interest in regular school work. The hobby of reading is, indeed, a most gratifying one if well spent. Bulwer says: "Books are but waste paper unless we spend in action the wisdom we get from thought."

In the midst of life's hurries, when there is so little time to do the things we want to do, there comes a call in the serene, quiet hours of Sunday morning, to go to church. Many heed the call but countless thousands neglect it for certain reasons. Sunday is the only day when the army of busy people try to find recreation and rest. When one works all the week, quite naturally he thinks that the "Sabbath was made for man, and not man or the Sabbath." Thus he improves the time; it may be a picnic, a day of lounging at home, the radio, visitors, etc. In the midst of it all, there still is the Sunday morning church bell calling something like this: "Go to church even if it is hard for you to make up your mind. You'll meet the best citizens; but it isn't so important for you to see them as it is for them to see you."

SIMPLIFY THANKSGIVING

IT'S just an old American custom, this Thanksgiving ritual, but it's one to be proud of. So long may it endure! And don't let any modern dietitian talk you into substituting baked fish for stuffed turkey, or fruit soufflés for pumpkin pies. Serve a one-hundred-percent Thanksgiving dinner, but select foods which can be used also for a later buffet supper.

For no matter how adequate the dinner, there's going to be a supper. You know that. You know that along late in the evening, memories of that tender, savory turkey and that mellow, spicy pumpkin pie are going to lead thankful folks toward the refrigerator—for just a bite more.

Ways and Means

If you have simplified your menu so that one cooking will serve both meals—the dinner and the buffet supper—then instead of being the harried hostess you can be your own guest for supper. You can linger by the flickering candlelight over good food and good talk, linking up memories of other happy Thanksgivings with these fleeting ones, and you can be truly thankful.

Let's get down to ways and means. There'll be turkey of course. Then order a turkey that is sufficiently large so that you will have two cups of diced cold turkey left over to make a delicious turkey and rice casserole as the main dish for your buffet supper.

There will be celery also to add to the turkey dressing. Reserve the celery hearts to use as one of the appetizers for the evening buffet.

There are many salads that can be tossed together with remnants of the Thanksgiving dinner, but perhaps you would like to make a gelatin salad a whole day before the holiday and put it in the refrigerator ready for Thanksgiving evening. A very delicious recipe for this sort of salad follows.

Preparedness Counts

Your tart shells for pumpkin tarts may be made a day in advance also. Then when you make your pumpkin filling for the dinner pie, make sufficient to fill the tart shells for the buffet dessert. The following recipes serve eight persons

Celery Hearts
Watermelon Pickles
Turkey and Rice Casserole
Golden Harvest Salad
Buttered Finger Rolls
Jellied Pumpkin Tarts
Coffee, Cider or Hot Chocolate

Turkey and Rice Casserole: Put alternate layers of rice, turkey and ham in a casserole, starting and ending with rice. Use three cups of hot boiled rice, two cups of diced cold turkey and one-half cup of diced cold ham. Dust the layers lightly with salt and pepper. Pour over the contents of one 1-pound can of cream of mushroom soup, and cover with buttered crumbs. Heat until well browned in a hot oven. This makes liberal servings for eight.

Golden Harvest Salad: Soften one tablespoon of gelatin in four tablespoons of cold water. Dissolve with one-third cup of sugar in one and two-thirds cups of boiling water. Add one-fourth cup vinegar, three-fourths teaspoon salt and cool until it becomes as thick as honey. Then add the contents of one 11-ounce can of diced carrots, one-half cup diced cucumbers and two tablespoons diced green peppers. Turn into eight individual wet molds and chill. Serve on crisp lettuce hearts and garnish with mayonnaise. Or you may serve on the same plate with the turkey casserole.

LIEUT. BERT A. ALLEN POST No. 2415 AND AUXILIARY

Closing three years of the hardest and most trying times which come to any organization, Lieut. Bert A. Allen post No. 2415, and auxiliary, installed officers for the forthcoming year at Point Loma, Nov. 14.

Addressing the newly installed officers of the post and auxiliary, Commander Fred H. Norris, reviewed the accomplishments of the retiring commander and president and warned the new officers of the fact that in order to attain equal or greater merit, they would indeed be forced to the limits of their capabilities.

Organized and instituted on June 23, 1932, Fred H. Kraft was installed as the first post commander. Succeeding Commander Kraft, G. N. Speer acquired the office of commander by virtue of the resignation of Commander Kraft. Following G. N. Speer, Elmer Johnson took over the office of commander and carried affairs to a good conclusion till the end of his term of office. Henry Buckle was then elected to the office of commander and fulfilled that position till the end of his year. It was then that Comrade Madigan took command, and lifted the post from below the surface to a position of leadership among veteran organizations in Southern California.

The post was named in honor of Lieut. Bert A. Allen, a native son of Point Loma, who early saw his duty and enlisted in the Canadian Flying Corps. He was soon commissioned a lieutenant and proceeded to France, where he made his name famous among the air fighters at the front. In the words of Commander Kraft on the night that the post was instituted, "We are proud to have named the post in memory of such a distinguished soldier, a Point Loma boy, who proved himself to be a brave and honorable officer, a gallant soldier, who sacrificed his life for a great cause. We are proud of his record, proud to know that as an American, he served with the Royal Air Force, prior to the entry into the World War be this country. The comrades of the post know how he was brought down in enemy territory, when he, single handed tried to bring down five enemy airplanes, and as a result was buried in enemy territory. The odds were to much. Buried by the enemy, the Germans rendered this tribute to him on his headstone, 'Here lies the brave English flying officer, Lieut. Bert A. Allen, fell Oct. 11, 1917', which was placed there in recognition of his bravery, and which was later transferred to a British cemetery in France, near Cambrai."

POULTRY HELPS.

By E. E. Steele.

There are several diseases similar to cholera, symptoms, are so nearly identical that it is only by studying the bacteria that these diseases can be distinguished from each other, therefore for practical purposes I will group them together.

The first symtoms is yellowish and greenish droppings, then diarrhea of the same color. The bird becomes droopy, feverish and sleepy, setting with head drawn back to body or turned under and resting in feathers about the wing.

Appetite diminishes, thirst increases and breathing becomes difficult. Finally the bird becomes so weak it cannot stand. The comb and watties turn dark-bluish red.

In very acute cases of cholera no symptoms are seen, the birds may be found dead under the roosts or they may drop dead while feeding.

Cholera may destroy the greater part of a flock in a week and then disappear, or it may linger in a chronic form for months.

Post-mortem—The heart has red spots on its surface. The first portion of the intestines is congested and hemorrhagic, and contain a pasty mass, which may be bloodstained. The vessels of the visceral organs are congested. The liver enlarged and very dark in color, the spleen swollen. A sticky fluid in mouth and nostrils.

Treatment is futile, kill the affected birds but you must guard against the contamination of the premises by infected blood; it is best to burn carcasses.

Move all healthy birds to new quarters and disinfect old and new quarters every day for at least one week.

The disease, like most all diseases of poultry, is carried to the flock by new birds, wild birds, animals or persons.

THE THEOSOPHICAL SOCIETY: POINT LOMA

Frances M. Dadd, registrar Lomaland school, will be the speaker at Theosophical Headquarters, Point Loma, Sunday, November 24, at 3 p.m. Taking the thread-theme, "Man, made of thought, is eternally thinking", for her general subject of "Theosophical Viewpoints", Mrs. Dadd will explain how each of us is ruller over an invisible kingdom—the kingdom of our thoughts. She declares: "We can think what thoughts we please. It is from this thought-world that actions, individual and collective, are motivated. This world of thought has two gateways—one looking out upon a limitless region of Light, thru which we can soar to touch the fringe of divinity, if we will; the other opening upon a lower world of darkness and discord, unhappiness, jealousy, selfish desire, and, it may be, despair. Viewed thru the Gateway of Light, each circumstance of life assumes its true proportions, illumined by spiritual understanding. We see ourselves as sparks of divinity forming part of a great cosmic being; our neighbors as god-like beings disguised in garments of humanness; our children as guests sojourning with us for a while, that we may help them on their way; material possessions as nature's bounty lent to us for a time to use to good purpose; misfortunes as our own acts of unwisdom returning to us to be rectified. Standing upon this vantage-ground the Theosophist can meet life fearlessly and with understanding, for he knows that in the Middle Place of his Being there is That which knows no defeat, for it is allied with all forces of Light."

O. I. Clark will assist the speaker in answering questions.

IS ONE LIFE ENOUGH?

There is such an immeasureable amount of experience to be had and knowledge to be gained in this life and so little opportunity in one short existence for us even to touch upon most of it, that the Universe and our present lives seem hopelessly aimless if we are not to live again and learn more.

Mrs. Grace Hoopes will be the chairman at the meeting of the Ocean Beach Theosophical club on Thursday November 28th at 8 p. m. in the clubhome at 1940 Abbott street when the above question will be under discussion.

The meeting is open to the public and there will be an opportunity to have questions answered.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

"Soul and Body" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon on Sunday in all branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass. The Golden Text is from Lamentations, "The Lord is good unto them that wait for him, to the soul that seeketh him."

One of the Bible selections in the Lesson-Sermon cites Paul's words to the Corinthians: "For we know that if our earthly house of this tabernacle were dissolved, we have a building of God, an house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens. . . . Therefore we are always confident, knowing that, whilst we are at home in the body, we are absent from the Lord: (for we walk by faith, not by sight:) we are confident, I say, and willing rather to be absent from the body, and to be present with the Lord."

The Lesson-Sermon includes also this passage from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Become conscious for a single moment that Life and intelligence are purely spiritual,—neither in nor of matter, —and the body will then utter no complaints. . . . Sorrow is turned into joy when the body is controlled by spiritual Life, Truth, and Love."

BAPTIST CHURCH SERVICES

"Christian Thankfulness" will be the subject of the pastor's sermon Sunday morning at 11 o'clock. The evening service at 7:30 will be a time for singing the old Gospel hymns, and the pastor will bring a message on "Christ Our Hope".

You are cordially invited to the services of this church.

CAMP FIRE NEWS

Friday evening the Wanca Huta girls gathered for another very interesting meeting.

The final plans were made for the hike to be held next Saturday, at 1:30 o'clock. The girls will meet at Mrs. MacCausland's house. Each one will bring her own lunch.

During the meeting a motion was made and seconded that the girls fix up old toys to send to the children of Rest Haven for Christmas. Katherine Coull was made chairman of this and each girl is to bring their things next meeting.

Mrs. Banfill, Dorothy Banfills mother, and Mrs. Ayres, her aunt, were the visitors. The visitors were entertained with Camp Fire songs.

The will be no meeting held this Friday.

FUNERAL SERVICES HELD FOR THEOSOPHICAL OFFICIAL

Private memorial services were held Wednesday at Pt. Loma Theosophical headquarters for Lucien B. Copeland, 72, offcial of the order, who joined the society in 1895 under William Q. Judge and a cabinet officer under Katherine Tingley and the present leader, Dr. de Purucker. He left a widow, Mrs. Alice Copeland, and a daughter, Dorothy.

The last 21 years of his life were devoted to Theosophical work at his home at the Pt. Loma headquarters. He was a native of Massachusetts, a graduate of Amherst college member of the University club of Providence, R. I., and practiced law in Massachusetts and Nebraska before coming to California to reside.

GOING AND COMING

"There is nothing more expensive than getting married."

"Oh, I don't know! I only gave the minister ten dollars to marry me, but it took fifty for a divorce."

No Line

In reply to the teacher's question, "What is the axis of the earth?" Sam said an imaginary line from pole to pole.

"Good," said the teacher. "But could you hang clothes on that line?"

"Sure," answered Sam.

"Why, Sam," asked the astonished teacher, "what kind of clothes?"

"Imaginary clothes!"

Such a Quandary!

NEWS OF THE WEEK

Twelve-hundred homes and 500 farms were affected by action of the State Veterans Board which slashed insurance rates 40 per cent for ex-soldiers who have purchased farms and homes with state loans.

Christmas holidays for Mrs. Myrtle Newman will be spent in jail. Municipal Judge Daniel O'Brien of San Francisco gave her the choice of paying $250 fine or spending 50 days in jail for reckless driving.

Days of free and easy spending of state's money are over. From now on, by order of Governor Frank F. Merriam, officials must turn in itemized expense accounts when they travel for the state government.

Denying rumors that the nation's petroleum reserves are rapidly being depleted, the American Petroleum Institute in its 16th annual convention, which was held in Los Angeles, said that the nation's proven reserves are 100 per cent greater than estimated 10 years ago. It was freely admitted that California's petroleum situation, along with that of other states, is in a very confused condition at present.

Evidences of increase in winter tourist travel in California are the passenger lists of incoming steamers. Boats are reporting up to 40 per cent increases in passenger lists.

Thomas J. Mooney's habeas corpus hearing, which has already cost the state over $9,000, will probably cost $20,000 before it is finished, according to the office of State Attorney General U. S. Webb. For six weeks the Mooney defense has charged "fraud," "bribery" and "perjury." During the next four weeks the state will answer these charges.

Greatest financial activity on the Pacific Coast since June, 1931, was registered for October by the Federal Reserve Bank of San Francisco. Gains in industry, agriculture, transportation, commerce and building were recorded.

That old saying, "The only contented ones in the dairy industry are the cows," held good in Sacramento last week. Four sticks of dynamite were dropped through a vent in the Market Spot Dairy roof, the explosion breaking windows and deplastering walls. The violence was part of a milk war in the capital city, the bombed dairy selling cut-rate milk.

Federal courts will not try David Lamson for wife-murder, despite persistent efforts of his attorneys to have the case transferred from the Santa Clara County Superior Court to a Federal court. Judge J. J. Trabucco of Mariposa County will preside over the case at San Jose. It will be Lamson's third legal attempt to prove his innocence.

California's end-the-dole program is expected to give 160,000 employable families jobs by December 1, according to Frank Y. McLaughlin, state WPA director. About 27,000 families in California, classed as unemployables, will either be turned over to local relief agencies or will continue on SERA relief rolls.

Four hours and 12 minutes after taking off from San Diego, the giant Pan American China Clipper glided gracefully to a landing at its home base, Alameda airport, while a crowd of 10,000 watched. The 25-ton flying boat is going through final inspection before taking off on its maiden hop to China, November 22. The plane is luxuriously equipped to carry 20 overnight passengers plus the crew. On its first voyage it will carry mail, only.

As he piloted a big army plane through the air, Captain Donald Buckman was seized with a heart attack. Sticking to the controls, he courageously brought the ship and its three passengers safely to ground at the Kern airport. Twenty minutes later he died.

A major shakeup of San Francisco's Works Progress Administration, has resulted in dismissal of H. Victor Grant, assistant WPA director in charge of all construction, professional, technical and women's work projects, and Erle Collins, construction engineer in charge of large projects. Friction between the two men and city officials during the SERA regime was said to be the cause of their leaving the relief administration.

With Pacific Gas and Electric Company employes as pall-bearers, A. F. Hockenbeamer, 72, was buried at Berkeley. Hockenbeamer rose from janitor to the presidency of one of the West's greatest corporations.

In his recent New York visit, former President Herbert Hoover still refused to disclose his future political plans.

California's new Civil Service Law, written to prevent dismissal of state employes to make room for political appointees, was upheld in San Francisco recently when Superior Judge Timothy I. Fitzpatrick ruled that Edward B. Neusult be reinstated in the State Department of Agriculture. He will also receive back salary of $250 a month from January of this year until time of his reinstatement.

Easy to Make Pajamas Please Sleeping Beauty

PATTERN 2362

You're sure to want several pairs of these adorable pajamas when you find how easy they are to make. Why not have your week-night ones of some pretty cotton or flannel which launders easily? Then you just must have one pair in a luscious shade of blue or tearose silk, for gay week-ends away from home, and your "nightly" wardrobe isn't complete without one pair of dress-up pajamas of some heavier material for lounging or lazing, particularly if you're a Campus Queen. The tailored shirtwaist top may tuck into the bell-bottom trousers which "get the hang of it" from a triangular yoke and snug elastic waistband.

Pattern 2362 is available in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38 and 40. Size 16 takes 4 yards 36 inch fabric. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions are included.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Write plainly name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE.

Address orders to the Sewing Circle Pattern Dept., 243 West Seventeenth St., New York City.

"Fasting" Impostor

Of the many impostors who have claimed to have fasted for years and earned considerable money as curiosities, the only one who did not confess, when undergoing an official watch, was Sarah Jacobs of Wales. In 1869, after her parents had sworn that for two years no food had passed her lips, she was placed under surveillance of professional nurses and died of starvation in nine days.—Collier's Weekly.

Still Coughing?

No matter how many medicines you have tried for your cough, chest cold or bronchial irritation, you can get relief now with Creomulsion. Serious trouble may be brewing and you cannot afford to take a chance with anything less than Creomulsion, which goes right to the seat of the trouble to aid nature to soothe and heal the inflamed membranes as the germ-laden phlegm is loosened and expelled.

Even if other remedies have failed, don't be discouraged, your druggist is authorized to guarantee Creomulsion and to refund your money if you are not satisfied with results from the very first bottle. Get Creomulsion right now. (Adv.)

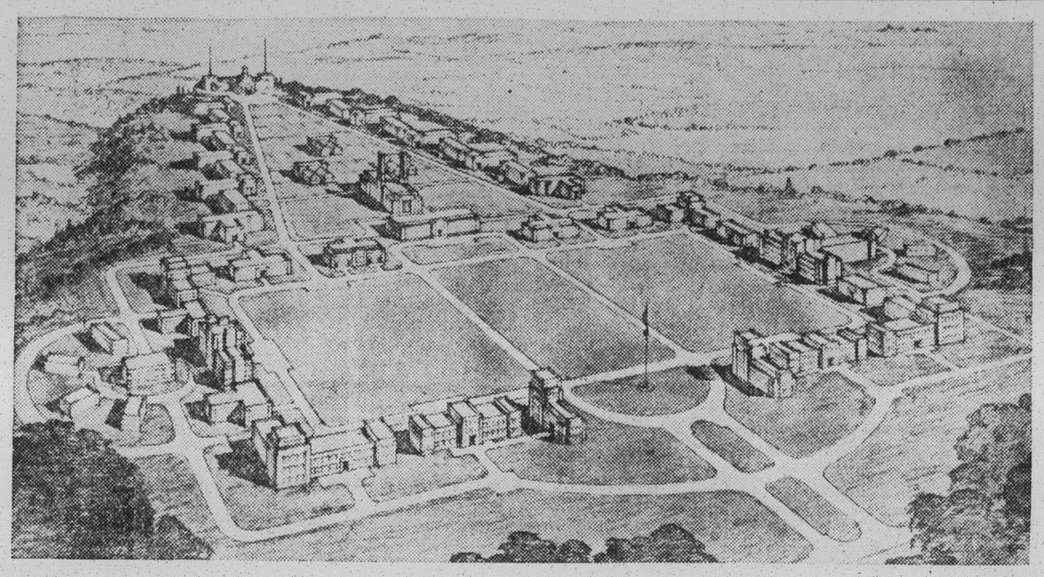
Research Center for Agriculture Department



HERE is a sketch of the buildings of the huge national research center for the Department of Agriculture at Berwyn Heights, Maryland, on which work has been started. Nine thousand acres of land will go into the immense "Nature and Farm Study" which is planned to be the largest of its kind in the world. One thousand of the acres will be used in an experimental low-cost housing project.

Bedtime Story for Children

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

THE THREE WATCHERS

WHEN Paddy the Beaver slapped the water with his broad tail, making a noise like a pistol shot, Lightfoot the Deer understood that this was meant as a warning of danger. He was on his feet instantly with eyes, ears and noses seeking the cause of Paddy's warning. After a moment or two Lightfoot stole softly up to the top of a little ridge some distance back from Paddy's pond, but from the top of which he could see the whole of the pond. There he hid among some close-growing young hemlock trees. It wasn't long before he saw a hunter with a terrible gun come down to the shore of the pond.

Now the hunter had heard Paddy slap the water with his broad tail. Of course, there would have been something very wrong with his ears had he failed to hear it. "Confound that beaver," muttered the hunter crossly. "If there was a deer anywhere around this pond he probably is on his way now. I'll have a look around and see if there are any signs."

Paddy Watched the Hunter.

So the hunter kept on to the edge of Paddy's pond and then began to walk around it, studying the ground as he walked. Presently he found the footprints of Lightfoot in the mud where Lightfoot had gone down to the pond to drink.

"I thought as much," muttered the hunter. "Those tracks were made last night. That deer probably was lying down somewhere near here, and I might have got a shot but for that pesky beaver. I'll just look the land over and then I think I'll wait here a while. If that deer isn't too badly scared he may come back."

So the hunter went all around the pond, looking into all likely hiding places. He found where Lightfoot had been lying, and he knew that in all probability Lightfoot had been there when Paddy gave the danger signal. "It's no use for me to try to follow him," thought the hunter. "It is too dry for me to track him. He may not be so badly scared after all. I'll just find a good place and wait."

So the hunter found an old log behind some small hemlock trees and there sat down. He could see all around Paddy's pond. He sat perfectly still. He was a clever hunter, and he knew that so long as he did not move he was not likely to be noticed by any sharp eyes that might come that way. What he didn't know was that Lightfoot had been watching him all the time, and was even then standing where he could see him. And another thing he didn't know was that Paddy the Beaver had come out of his house and, swimming under water, had reached a hiding place on the opposite shore, from which he too had seen the hunter sit down on the log.

So the hunter watched for Lightfoot and Lightfoot and Paddy watched the hunter.

THROUGH A Woman's Eyes

By JEAN NEWTON

ONE PATH TO CHARM THAT IS EASY TO ACHIEVE

I HAVE been reading an article about how dancing improves posture and carriage.

It is advised that we start in early childhood the training that brings about good posture and a graceful carriage. We are told of the rhythms which many schools are now teaching in the kindergarten, how proper breathing helps, the importance of good physical condition and always that paramount matter of example—letting the children see good posture and graceful walking so that they will imitate it.

As I read this it came to me that not enough has been said about the carriage of our women. We hear a good deal about our bad voices, how unfavorably they compare with the voices of women of other countries, how important is a good speaking voice in a woman. But of a woman's walk, which is no less important than her voice in the impression she creates, in any hope she may cherish for that elusive quality of charm—it seems that far too little notice is taken, or expressed.

If we observe the walk of the average woman from the viewpoint of grace and charm, we must be struck with horror; so few women except those who are in some way athletic walk in a way which is satisfying to the eye. So few women have that stride from the hip that means freedom and poise in walking; so few have animation in their walk, so few, so very few, have rhythm.

No woman can have poise with a mincing little hop of a walk. No woman can have charm who waddles from side to side, no women can have beauty who seems to be dragging one foot after another.

And this is one thing, this matter of a woman's walk, which anyone can learn without a teacher, which has no mysterious technique, and requires absolutely no expense. Any woman can walk well by just thinking about it! You can see the difference between a fine beautiful walk and a bad walk And any child has sufficient imitative faculty to reproduce the good one.

Some of the paths toward charm are straight and narrow and difficult of attainment. But there is one path to charm which is accessible to all of us who have normal physical build. The attainment of good carriage, of a graceful walk, is comparatively easy—and cheap. You need only think, when you are standing or walking, of how you are standing or walking, think about it until the carriage improved by your own sensitiveness has become natural!

QUESTION BOX

by ED WYNN, The Perfect Fool

Dear Mr. Wynn:

I am president of a debating society, and on next Saturday we are to debate the following subject, "Who Do the Silliest Things, Men or Women?" It would help us considerably if you would tell me the silliest thing you ever saw a man do. Will you tell me?

Yours truly,
OPHELIA SORESPOT.

Answer: The silliest thing I ever saw a man do was one day in the post office. I saw this man wait around for two hours and the minute he saw the postal clerk turn his back, he pushed four letters into the box, without stamps, thinking he was saving the postage.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

A friend of mine was invited to a party at a young lady's apartment, and he went. During the evening he told the young lady, quite frankly, that he did not like her apartment. The young lady had my friend arrested and he was charged with assault. How did the judge figure out an assault charge?

Yours truly,
Y. SHOODHE.

Answer: The judge probably figured as long as your friend had said nasty things about the young lady's apartment he was guilty of "knocking her flat."

Dear Mr. Wynn:

I go with a crowd of boys and girls and once a week we meet and those who can sing do so, while others just tell jokes and stories. I tell jokes. There is one girl in the crowd who doesn't like me and every time I tell a joke she always says: "That joke is 40 years old." How can I cure her?

Truly yours,
JOE KING.

Answer: The next time you tell a joke and she says: "That joke is forty years old," you say to her: "And you remember it all this time?" That'll cure her.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

I am forty-four years of age and a single woman. Met a man last night who asked to call on me. He is coming to see me next Saturday. I have never had a man call on me before. In case he wants to kiss me shall I call for help?

Sincerely,
MAY DIN.

Answer: By no means call for help. If you are forty-four years old and have never been married and a man tries to kiss you don't call for help. Call for witnesses.

YOUTH AND THE MODEL "T"

By ANNE CAMPBELL

A PUFF and a squeak, and it's plain to see,
My daughter is having company!
They all pile out of a Model 'T'!

It's covered with paint of a lurid hue—
Red and yellow and purple, too,
And the windshield is strange to the adult view!

But the fifteen-year-olds who all say it's "hot"
Are gay as if pulled in a chariot
By six white steeds on a movie lot!

It wheezes and makes a peculiar noise
That is drowned by the laughter of the boys
Who call for the girls in this weirdest of toys!

And I laugh, as I think I would rather be
Eddie and Jack with that Model "T"
Than the wealthiest magnate of history!

WORTHWHILE AFFAIRS AT THE POINT LOMA ASSEMBLY

The Women's division of the Point Loma assembly held its regular afternoon meeting at the clubhouse on Talbot street, Thursday, Nov. 21.

An interesting program was planned. Mrs. R. R. McLean read several original poems, Mrs. Wm. Lang sang two groups of songs, and Miss Mary Esther Caldwell talented young student at San Diego high school, gave a talk.

Mrs. W. E. Lyon and Mrs. W. R. Spicknall were hostesses for the social hour.

The card party given by the Assembly at the clubhouse Friday, Nov. 15, furnished a delightful evening for a large group of people. Twenty-seven tables were taken.

Mrs. E. F. Linstrom, who was in charge, had as her committee Mesdames Wm. Rachac, J. McFadden, F. Arthur Heilbron, Stanley Turner and Miss Eolia Davidson.

Musical entertainment was furnished by Victor Winn, Thad Brown, and Clark Poston, and a vocal solo by Miss Helen Wellington, accompanied by Mrs. V. R. Knight.

Beautiful prizes were won by Mesdames Ruth Goodwin, H. H. Ross, Sparks, Ella C. Campbell, Louisa Pfahler, Blanche Wood and Miss Madelaine Smith.

Rainfall this season will be slightly heavier than that of the past year, according to the prediction of Dr. George F. McEwen of the University of Oceanography at La Jolla. He believes precipitation will increase until 1940.

Point Loma O. E. S. No. 490

Point Loma chapter No. 490 O. E. S. met in regular session Monday evening November 18th with Edythe Kenline, worthy matron and Harry Sweet, worthy patron presiding. Past matrons and patrons escorted east were Carrie L. Mason, Ida T. White, Olive Sweet, Ed Hastings and Tom Mason. Ethel Dougherty, Mary C. Lee and Harry Sweet were introduced as past matrons and patrons of Point Loma.

As this was the last meeting under the present set of officers a detailed report was given by the worthy matron and worthy patron which showed that the chapter activities for the year had been happy and harmonious

Lillian Hartvigsen, soloist for Point Loma chapter sang a lovely solo which expressed her thanks to the chapter for the nice courtesies shown her during the year.

The banquet hall was beautifully decorated which depicted the harvest time.

The honored guests of the evening were the new members taken into the chapter during the year and for the members of Point Loma chapter. Delicious refreshments were served and speeches were made by Ed Hastings, Harry Sweet and Tom Mason. Coranna Burnette was chairman of this lovely party and was assisted by Ida White and Mary Johnston.

POINTERS PROVE TOO MUCH FOR COUGARS

Escondido fought bravely, but were unable to make headway against the superior Lomans.

The fighting Lomans scored in the first quarter when Kovac, end, blocked a Cougar punt, and the ball rolled over the goal. Six Point Loma players piled up on the ball, and, when they were untangled, Larson, tackle had the quarry snuggled in his arms. Tichenor converted.

Escondido came right back full of fight. With the kick-off, they advanced from their own 20 to the Loman 40 on the run-back, thence to the 4-yard line on a pass, scoring 3 plays later. The try-for-point failed. Score. at the half: Point Loma, 7; Escondido, 6.

The second Loman score came in the third quarter, when Lutes, full, intercepted and Escondido lateral, and galloped 40 yards unmolested to a touchdown. Tichenor again converted. Later in the same quarter, Lutes again scored, bucking the ball over from the Cougar 5, on fourth down. Once more Tichenor's aim for the up-rights was true.

In the fourth quarter, Lutes intercepted another pass, placing the ball on the Escondido 47. From this point he and Robinson, quarter, carried the ball to the 17, whence Robinson tallied. No, Tichenor didn't convert; Lutes tried and succeeded. Final score: Point Loma, 28; Escondido, 6.
